- Miguel Sánchez, Director of Global Security and Intelligence at Telefónica, has been appointed Chairman of the Technical Advisory Board of Seguritecnia.

Madrid, 07th March 2022.- Seguritecnia magazine has appointed Miguel Sánchez as chairman of its Technical Advisory Board for 2022, to lead the consultative body of the specialised media in the Private Security and Public Safety sector in Spain.

Sánchez hopes that with this new role, he will "contribute to strengthening the essential links between public and private security", based on the knowledge and experience he has acquired over the years from his service to society through the Public Administration and his work at Telefónica.

Miguel Sánchez has been the head of Telefónica's Global Security and Intelligence department since 2016, the year in which the company approved a new Global Security Policy. This policy, based on the four principles of legality, cooperation and coordination, efficiency and co-responsibility, defined the characteristics and lines of action that guide the updating of security, defining it as global, comprehensive, proactive and digital

The new president of the Technical Advisory Board of Seguritecnia shares with the Telefónica Tech Security team, the current trend in security to move towards resilient organisations, capable of resisting and recovering from the incidents that they are certainly going to suffer in the current environment. The biggest challenge for corporate security, he says, lies in being able to anticipate traditional threats quickly and efficiently, which will use the new technological capabilities offered by the fourth industrial revolution as a vector of attack.

In any case, Miguel Sánchez stresses that, in order to fulfil the main mission of corporate security, "we must place people at the centre of our activity. They are the most important asset we need to protect".
